

Comensura Appoints Public Sector Relationship Director

London, 12 May, 2009 – Comensura, the UK's market leader in the procurement and management of indirect services, has announced the appointment of Charles Austin as relationship director for Comensura UK. Charles will be responsible for ensuring that Comensura provides a first-class service to all of its Public Sector customers and delivers on its promise to increase the quality and speed of recruitment while reducing the cost. Charles will also play a key role in Comensura's expansion into permanent recruitment and the growth of its product and service offerings in the public sector.

“Charles' extensive experience of working with organisations in the public and private sector and his in-depth knowledge of the permanent recruitment sector make him a valuable addition to our team,” said Mike Trevor, CEO of Comensura. “As we start to roll out our second generation outsourcing model he will play a key role in the strategic development and growth of the company.”

Charles has more than 20 years' experience working within the recruitment industry and has held a variety of client services and business development roles at companies such as Hudson, Monster and TMP.

“Comensura's second-generation outsourcing model and new candidate sourcing channels will deliver significant cost savings to our customers. I'm excited by the opportunity to build upon Comensura's leadership position within temporary recruitment for the public sector and expansion into new markets,” said Charles.

Comensura offers a combination of managed services and sophisticated technology that together manages the entire recruitment process. It enables key functions to be automated and monitors and ranks recruitment agencies against key criteria including cost, responsiveness and the calibre of candidates to create a dynamic, competitive supplier list.
